EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

1. On Wednesday, February 28th, I will be addressing the Faculty of Economics at Northwestern University; and on Thursday, March 1st, the faculty of the Department of Economics at the University of Chicago. My discussion at Northwestern will, basically, follow the text of my P-2183, "The Crude Analysis of Strategic Choices," and that at Chicago, my P-2173, "Risk, Ambiguity, and the Savage Axioms." Both of these papers are unclassified, and were cleared at an earlier time.
2. Somewhat belatedly may I note also that on Friday, February 9th, I addressed the Interdisciplinary Colloquium on Mathematics in the Behavioral Sciences at UCLA, the subject of which was also my P-2173.
